"My deliberate judgment is that the oven of the Range, as compared with others is not only more equally heated in every part—front as well as rear—but as a result of its superior ventilation the food placed therein is better cooked, while retaining a sweeter flavor, and a larger proportion of its best juices. I have found, also, that the consumption of fuel in this Range for a given amount of work, is much less than any other."

THE STATE ASSESSMENT.

THE INCREASE AND DECREASE OF THE PAST YEAR.

Barly Thirteen Millions Added to the Valuation of the Growing State—Half the Counties Reduce Their Assessment—Interesting Facts for the Tax-Payers.

Special Correspondence of the POST-DISPATCH.

JEFFERSON CITY, February 22.—Here with is given the abstract of the assessment of real and personal property for the taxes of 1886, as compiled from the tabulated statements in the State Auditor's office, together with a comparative table of the increase and decrease over assessment for 1885, giving the actual difference in the valuations for each county for the two years. The assessment abstracts from the following counties are still outstanding, to-wit: Boone, Butler, Douglas, Franklin, Miller and Polk. Assuming these Counties will remain unchanged, the actual net increase of the assessment of 1886 over 1885 is $13,014,888. As the aggregate taxable wealth amounted to $681,718,380, which will place it at $694,733,268.

These are the returns as made by the county assessors, which in many instances will probably be changed by the State Board. The above assessment does not include railroads, telegraphs and bridges, as this class of property is assessed by the State Board itself.

It will be seen from the foregoing table that fifty counties indicate a falling off in taxable wealth, and fifty-eight exhibit an increase in the valuations for each county for the two years. The assessment abstracts from the largest and greatest rate of increase by nearly 82 per cent of gain over the previous assessment. Green County comes next in amount of gain, being nearly equal with the per cent of gain shown by Jackson, while Green and Harrison show a falling off in taxable wealth.

Nodaway furnishes the lowest falling off, while Harrison shows a greater per cent. His decrease is nearly 10 per cent of the entire assessment of 1885.

The Southwest shows a more general increase than any other portions of the State, the great belt of Missouri River counties, exclusive of Jackson, exhibit the largest falling off.

The State Board of Equalization will meet on Wednesday the 24th inst., but it is not probable that all the statements will be presented. In the table of increase and decrease is one especially prepared for the convenience of the readers of the POST-DISPATCH, which will be found highly interesting.

Have Joseph Beaver released from jail and I will pay the amount of the judgment against him, if not exceeding $100, provided you will help me to do so.

The representative of the WORLD will be at the Sheriff's office when it opens this morning, and as soon thereafter as possible Mr. Beaver will be free. Mr. Beaver has been persecuted under the law for years, simply because he has had the misfortune to be poor. He could not leave Manhattan Island without making himself liable to a recall. Every time a new sheriff took office he was obliged to renew his bond, each time paying an exorbitant fee. In 1883 he borrowed $68 from Rome & Elliott, money lenders, then doing business on Fulton street. For months he paid interests to them, and when he was offered to pay back half of the principal, the firm declined to receive any part of the debt, saying that all the amount must be paid or none. Mr.
Beaver, at the suggestion of a friend, stopped paying interest. A suit was brought against him, and his creditors obtained judgment for $7.50, the full amount claimed. The judgment has never been satisfied, and the firm of creditors has long since passed out of existence.
Mr. Beaver had been out on bail until about three weeks ago.

The prisoners looked very gloomy when the reporter of the WORLD called on him yesterday, but his countenance quickly changed when he was shown the telegram and was told that he would be free.

A FREE MAN TO-DAY.

He was profuse in his expressions of gratitude and was touched by the fact that an entire stranger should sympathize so deeply with him in his misfortune. "I don't know," he said, "how to tell you how much I am obliged to the WORLD for what it has done in this case. It is something I didn't expect.
There are many in this jail now, that have been here for years with nothing but the charge of debt against them, and it began to look to me as though I was never to see the outside of this jail. I understand you are going to come out to-morrow. Well, God bless the WORLD for its work. A paper that takes the part of the poor and unfortunate will never lose its friends. I don't think I feel much by being released, but I feel that I have been treated fairly, have been given plenty to eat and it's been like a revelation. I had a notion when I came in too, and it's well now. The whole thing has been a lesson to me. Hereafter I intend to do my own thinking and I guess I'll keep out of trouble. What will I do when I am out? I'll go back to railroad again. I formerly was a driver on the Third Avenue line, and would not have given it up, hadn't I hurt my leg so, and could stand all day."

"If you anticipate any trouble in securing a place," was asked.

"Not a bit of it," was the reply.

"I've always taken care of myself and I'm hale and hearty still. I can do something.
I'll probably be put on as an extra, at first.
The pay will be small, but it will be enough to give me a bed at night and plenty to eat. I expect to live with my son as soon as I get started on the road."

The story of Beaver's case in yesterday's WORLD, together with the editorial on the same subject, created a good deal of interest among the other imprisoned debtors at the jail. Mr. Beaver said in reference to this that they all said it was a good thing to agitate the subject. "You see, it is only occasionally that the matter is ventilated, because the debtors have not the power to help themselves. You speak of criminal injustice, but that expression is hardly strong enough.
Now look at my case. I did not do anything that was wrong. I've always been a good, honest citizen, and served the public as a volunteer fireman and as a politician. They could not be punished more if they were highway robbers or murderers. The old gentleman objected when the WORLD acted against him."

"I like to see pictures in the papers," he said, "and it's all right to get the faces of the President and Aldermen, but when it comes to ordinary men like me I draw the line."

FOUND GUILTY.

Decision Against the Fugitive Directors of the Cincinnati City Railway.

CINCINNATI, February 22.—Judge Goebel of the Probate Court to-day announced his decision in the impeachment proceedings against Martin Brockman and Fred Herman, Directors of the City Railway, charged with making fraudulent vouchers and various acts of malfeasance in office. He found them guilty as charged and removed them from office. They sent their resignations to the Mayor and then fled. It has been fairly ascertained that Brockman went to Canada and Herman to Havana. Mayor Smith refused to accept their resignations.

VINCENNES, Ind., February 22.—Some 2,000 enthusiastic citizens assembled this forenoon to witness the ground breaking for the new water-works, which was performed by Mayor Wilhelm, accompanied in appropriate speech, creating much enthusiasm. Two hundred laborers, mostly strangers, applied for work.

THE HOLLAND-DAVIS TRAGEDY.

The Prisoner Appears in Court and has the Case Continued till Thursday.

New York, February 22.—The case of James T. Holland, who is accused of the murder of "Tom" Davis, the gambler, on August 31, 1885, was called for trial to-day in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. The room was packed with spectators. Counsel for the defense said that owing to the non-arrival of the deposition of John D. Hill, of Abilene, Texas, who was a material witness, he would ask for an adjournment until Thursday. The case, he said, would last about a week. The Court granted the request and Holland was led back to prison.

Continued.

SAIT LAXE CUT, February 22.—Frank and Angus Cannon, sons of the Mormon elder, called at the hotel of United States Attorney Dickson last night. A third man was sent in to call on the elder Cannon. When he appeared one of the trio struck him in the face with a stone.
The Cannon boys were arrested and one of them was found with a loaded self-cocking revolver on his person. The women in the crowd collected expressed sympathy for the Cannon boys.

NO WORD OF DENIAL COMES FROM THE BALLOT-BOX STUFFERS.

THE graveyard vote is silent as to how it got on the registration books.

THERE are several political boarding-houses yet to hear from.

THE NEW YORK Aldermen act as if they thought ROSECRANCE wanted to look at the ballot-boxes.

THE revelations of the POST-DISPATCH are bringing the election frauds very close home to the Mayor's appointees.

A FEW more revelations will make us dread that the graveyard vote of St. Louis may outnumber the live vote.

THE question of how many genuine voters there are in the St. Louis registration is getting to be quite interesting.

"Mum's the word" among the New York Aldermen. In St. Louis a ghostly silence echoes a muffled: "Mum's the word."

THE little tin JEFFERSONS of the St. Louis Democracy treat a local election as if it was a Broadway Railroad steal, to be hushed up.

IN Cincinnati the Court has consented to have the fraudulent election returns photographed. In St. Louis the Court is asked to keep them dark.

THE Globe-Democrat, after one brilliant effort in favor of opening the ballot-boxes, has relapsed into its former gloomy silence. Is the Globe-Democrat afraid that the election may be reversed?

SUSAN B. ANTHONY claims that she has the names of twenty-six Senators who will vote for female suffrage, but SUSAN will have to learn that a Senatorial promise extorted under the persuasive pressure of feminine charms will not always stand the cold test of the eyes and nose.

THE contagion of secrecy now prevailing at Washington has extended to the River and Harbor Committee of the House. The committee has passed a resolution restraining all the members from making public any information about its proceedings till the list of appropriations is completed. The people would like to know something about the action of the committee as it proceeds with its work, so as to get a chance for reflection and criticism.

THE tawny Black Eagle of the West was taken at an embarrassing disadvantage when he rose to address the Michigan Club on the 23d. His remarks were devoted to the late civil war and to GEORGE WASHINGTON, and the trouble was to work in a eulogy on WASHINGTON, the grandest rebel in history, and make it harmonize and smoothly blend with the stereotyped denunciation of the Southern people for embarking in rebellion. The bloody shirt was subjected to a cruel ordeal, and the speaker easily won the profound sympathy of his auditors.

COL. MARATTA, the United States Marshal for Dakota, has been talking about the proposed admission of that Territory into the Union. He claims that the Dakota people are reasonably modest, and that if they get into the Union, the only additional request they will make will be to have the Federal Capital moved from the District of Columbia to Dakota. He adds: "What the Dakota people want is somebody to tell them exactly what they think." After such arguments as these, Dakota ought to be admitted without further controversy.

THE Michigan Club, a Republican organization at Detroit, had an enthusiastic rally on the 23d. Senator PALMER spoke first, and said he believed that the party failed in the last Presidential election "because it failed to emphasize the moral issue." It is to be inferred, then, that the party succeeded in former struggles because it did "emphasize the moral issue."

When the electoral vote of Louisiana was stolen, and the dark deed upheld and defended by the "leading statesmen," there was a peculiar emphasis imparted to the moral issues of the situation; and the same thing was evident when the notorious DORSEY, once a campaign manager, though now a piping shepherd, scattered his campaign "soup" with a free and liberal hand.

THE ELECTION FRAUDS.

The revelations of the POST-DISPATCH regarding the manner in which the recent city election was corrupted bear on their face such evidence of truthfulness as to convince the most skeptical. No denial has been attempted; no disproof can be made.

They open up a wide range of questions and of possibilities. They compel us to ask how far the officials who have profited by these glaring frauds have become accomplices after the fact, and rendered them responsible for the crimes of that election day.

They open up the wider question as to the future of elections in St. Louis. The men who prostituted the registration of voters are still in control of the registration. The judges and clerks who carried on the frauds in their precincts are holding office and still wield party influence. The whole gang of repeaters may be found in charge of the work of governing the city, and they are prepared, with a little assistance from the Legislature, to renew their operations on a more extended scale in the future.

For the present, however, the main interest in the case centers in the legal proceedings in the Circuit Court, in which a decision may be expected as early as to-morrow. Pending that decision we do not propose to express any opinion, but our previous statements stand, and the contest into which we have entered for the purity of the ballot will go on until the final and certain victory is won.

OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The President and the King of Belgium indulged a few months ago in a correspondence touching the Congo State, and their letters were recently sent to Congress by the State Department. The Belgian King addresses the President as "Very Dear and Great Friend," while our Executive salutes the glittering crowned head as "Esteemed and Great Friend." We see here a pleasant departure from the severe formality that once marked the course of diplomatic correspondence, and a gentle touch of the universal brotherhood of men. The friends of progress will gladly note this growing and affectionate familiarity among rulers, whether crowned or uncrowned, fairly elected or stuffed in. In a few years the genial LEOPOLD may begin to address the President as "Dear Grove," "Dear Cleve," or "Old Pard"; while our genial Executive, thoroughly soaked with the distilled essence of Jeffersonian simplicity, may respond with such playful epithets as "Your Royal Nibs," "My Dear Boy," "Old Beebeas," "Old Chappie" or "Dear Leap." There is evidence here of good-humored fraternization that should not be lost upon the state of their wine cellars, the prettiest debutantes and the latest waltzes, while our patriotic President may respond with an entertaining stock of news about trout-fishing, the mint crop, improved worm-guards, fishing tackle, pocket-flasks, etc., etc. It is true that the ruler of Belgium is a born king, but he didn't go into office with the blaze of torch-light processions and the blare of E flats; so there is no reason why he should hold up his sacred head above the simple Jeffersonian pate of a plain American President. On the contrary, it would be entirely proper for the two eminent officials to meet or correspond on a footing of equality and to apply to each other terms of affectionate familiarity.

LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL is discharging a large volume of wind and fury. He is now doing his utmost to incite the Orangemen of Ulster to deeds of revolution and bloodshed by appealing to their bitter religious prejudices. The speaker vehemently denounces Mr. GLADSTONE for his agreement with the Parnellites, while there is strong reason for believing that Lord CHURCHILL last year tried to make a similar agreement, involving the same concessions, while striving to maintain his party in power through the help of the Irish party in the House of Commons. There is much to make the English voters distrust the noble lord's sincerity, and to ascribe his furious harangues to an impatient wish to overthrow the Gladstone government at all hazards. The mischievous character of the recent Liberal triumph is especially patent to a retired member of the Cabinet who had to give up a salary of $30,000.

The friends of the Established Church in England have found out that the only chance they have of maintaining the connection between the Church and State is to introduce prompt and thorough reforms in the management and regulation of Church affairs, and they are addressing themselves to the work without delay. But even this resort can only avert to postpone the inevitable disestablishment of the Church. The government might correct all existing abuses and introduce all possible reforms, and there would still remain the injustice and error that are inherent in the idea of a connection between the government and a particular religious denomination. The Establishment is wrong in principle, and it will be abolished as an act of right, not less than as a measure of expediency, while the anticipated damage to the Church itself will turn out to be more imaginary than real.

We give to-day the first report of the valuation of the counties of the State for taxation. The remarkable result is announced that in this young, rich and growing State of Missouri more than half the counties claim that the value of their lands has decreased. Of course this is done only to make taxation as light as possible. It is a repetition of what we might expect if the individual property-owners of St. Louis were allowed to fix the assessment of their property for taxation. We have a State Board of Equalization, created by law for the purpose of correcting this undervaluation, but the board will make no changes except the most trivial ones, and St. Louis will be called on to bring up the average by submitting to overassessment.

roads. Now Jay Gould wants to connect the Iron Mountain line, through the heart of the State, with the Union Depot, and coolly asks that a surface track be condemned for him. If the City Council will do as he requests them at all times, Mr. Gould may conclude to build a depot worthy the name. If not, well, St. Louisans may get along with the depot as it is; he owns it, and no one else can build a depot, and it is adopting with the city the method of the Union Depot, which is called the "Champion" method. The method is to build a depot, and to adopt with the city the method of the Union Depot, which is called the "Champion" method. New Frauds Found in the Tenth and Twelfth Wards.

Wm. Kreyling Explains the Rotteness of Precinct No. 112.

A Man Who Refused to Vote Told That His Name Would Be Voted Upon Anyhow, and Was—More Dead Men and Vacant Lots—Citizens Who Deny That They Voted on April 7, 1888—The Illegal Ballots Described.

I have already exposed two of the most glaring of the frauds perpetrated in the First Ward at the Mayor's election. Thirteen fraudulent votes were cast from Ed O'Brien's boarding house, No. 368 South Main street, four of them by dead men and seven by men who left the city years before the election. Forty-four were registered and voted from Peter Morrissey's boarding-house, at 632 South Broadway, the majority of which were fraudulently cast in the name of Daniel Colligan, a man who was mere myths, or parties who were not entitled to vote.

These frauds were committed in Precincts 2 and 7, but they were only a small fraction of the work done in the First Ward on April 7, 1888.

As an indication of the manner in which the ward was "held up" and robbed of its honest voters, I here offer some of the testimony taken in 9 of the precincts, which is a total of 18 tracts, exclusive of those that have already been credited to Morrissey's and O'Brien's boarding-houses.

Every name in this list was voted upon, and in the column headed "Testimony" I give the reasons offered by Contestant Ewing's counsel for challenging each vote. This testimony all relates to election day, showing that the alleged voter either was not at the address given on April 7, 1888, or had moved from there, or had never been there, and explaining other causes that existed to make the vote worthless and criminal.

In some of the precincts the clerks did not enter the ballot numbers in the poll-book and therefore they will not be seen in their proper column.

There are fifty-four fraudulent votes, which are considered so for the following reasons: O. M. Birmingham never lived at 224 Morgan, but is supposed to refer to Con Birmingham, registered, and voted from 224 Morgan; whose son was a judge of election in this precinct and who possibly must have known that the C. M. Birmingham registered from 224 Morgan was a fraud.

Edward Carolan says he voted only in Precinct 186, Eighteenth Ward, where he was living election day.

Michael Casey, Jr., had moved from 222 N. Lucas avenue a year before.

Michael Casey, Sr., he did not vote.

Wm. Dreyling is not known, but here is an explanation which will suggest how No. 92 was voted upon:

My name is Wm. Kreyling. I formerly resided at 213 Morgan street. I have looked at a copy of the registration list and find that I am registered as Wm. Dreyling. There was no one living at 213 Morgan street by the name of Dreyling, and I was the only man by the name of Kreyling who lived at that house. I removed from that place to Leblanc avenue and Vine Grove avenue before the Presidential election in 1884.

On the 7th of April, 1887, I received from the passing the polling place, Twenty-fourth and Morgan, and was informed to vote, but refused to do so. I would not vote the Democratic ticket and told that I did not vote my name on the copy of the registration list. I went out in the country on election day and did not vote at all. I find on the copy of the registration list that the name of Daniel Colligan, 213 Morgan street, Colligan moved with me from 213 Morgan street to 213 N. Lucas in the country on election day. He did not vote.

Washington Hays had moved from 213 Morgan, two years before.

Henry Hensen says he did not vote.

Wm. A. Miller says he did not vote.

W. O. Moore moved from 719 N. 22d, in '84.

There is no such number from 719 N. 22d, avenue, from which Michael Mullany is supposed to have voted.

The Washington avenue car stables extend from the corner to the middle of the block.

A. T. Myers had left the city.

Hugh B. Rex had been dead two years.

I did not vote; was not in the city on election day, April 7, 1888.

Andrew Traubel was in Jefferson City.

S. N. Wylie had moved from 241 St. Charles in '84.

William Butler says he did not vote.

No. 231 Lucas place, from which True J. Dodge voted, is a vacant lot.

There is no residence at 216 Lucas avenue, from which John Leahy voted; car stable.

Thos. E. Tust did not vote.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

The New State Bonds—Latest Volume of Supreme Court Reports.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., February 23.—The Fund Commissioners received and counted the new bonds to-day are found correct in number, printing, style, etc.

The board turned them over to the Governor for him to sign, after which the Secretary of State will sign and affix the seal of the State.

This done, they will be registered by the State Auditor and forwarded to the Bank of Commerce, New York, for delivery to the purchasers.

The number is 60, 98 per cent interest bonds of $1,000 each.

Volume 32 Supreme Court and 17 of the Court of Appeals reports were to-day received and approved by the Attorney-General.

They are the new ones published by E. V. Stephens. Volume 32 contains 111 cases, of which Judge Henry Foster, Jr., Norton, 31, Ray, 6, Sherwood, 6, Black, 7; Hough, 1; Commissioner Phillips, 13; Ewing, 13, and Norton, 30.

MURDERED HIS FRIEND.

A Bloody Tragedy in a Skating Rink at Coral, Mich.

CORAL, Mich., February 23.—A dance was held at the rink last night and in the course of the evening, a couple of men named Kain and Wiseman, started a row with Daniel Looney. They were suppressed, but soon renewed the disturbance.

Looney drew a revolver and fired, hitting Kain in the chest and forehead, and the heart of the latter was pierced.

Looney fled, and Kain, who was a friend of his, followed him and tried to catch him, but he was too quick for him.

Looney was found by a friend of his, who took him to a doctor, but he died before he could be taken to the hospital.

Looney was a friend of Kain's, and it is thought that he was jealous of him.

car laughed uproariously and slapped his leg. The tramp gave him a long look, sawed to his feet, and shuffled across the street. Then he turned around and shouted:

"That's where you got left, mister! I don't think so as to get into a suit of clothes which were too small for me!"

PICKINGS FROM PARIS.

At the Asilez:

An old offender, who has been released from prison on an old sentence only a day or two, gets seven years at hard labor.

"That's all right," he remarks to the judge with an amiable smile, "my counsel told me that my re-election was assured."
